Bad Smash Up West of Town

A serious accident occurred Saturday night between nine and ten o'clock west of town about two miles, when Donnie Robertson and Miss Gladys Linkous returning from Lethbridge in Donnie's Ford Coupe struck the Chev. truck of Jensen Bros. which was parked on the side of the road, absolutely demolishing the body of Donnie's car, and throwing both occupants out of the door on the left hand side of the car cutting Donnie severely about the face, it required Dr. Leech more than an hour to stitch him up, and Miss Gladys suffered bruises, a couple or minor cuts on her right leg, and dislocation of some of the cords of the hip, so that she was unable to move her right leg.

Rayo Woolf was not far behind the accident victims and picked them up and brought them to the Doctor's office, and a car from King Motors went out and brought in the wreck of Donnie's car.

As near as can be learned, Art Jensen, who was hauling coal had a flat tire a little way this side of the Anderson dump, and pulling off to the side as far as he could, he left his lights on and came into town to get the tire repaired. Donnie was coming along the road, and another car heading for Lethbridge passed him just by the truck, so that the bright lights of the approaching car dazzled his vision and prevented his seeing the parked truck. When within about twenty feet of the truck he noticed it and swerved sharply to try and miss it, but a second too late, and the corner of the truck box hit the corner of the coupe body with a terrific impact, sufficient to slide both cars several feet along the road, knock the jack out from under the truck wheel, and let the truck down with such force on the frame that it required another truck to pull it out. Every window in the coupe except one was broken and the front and rear corners of the Ford body were only a few inches apart after the crash. It is a wonder that both passengers of the coupe were not killed.

The entire affair was checked over closely by Constable Ellis who decided that there was no evidence of negligence and that no charges would be preferred At latest reports both Miss Linkous and Donnie are getting along as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

The Christ Child

(By G. K. CHESTERTON)

The Christ Child lay on Mary's lap,
His hair was like a light.
(O weary, weary were the world,
But here is all aright.

The Christ Child lay on Mary's breast,
His head was like a star.
(O stern and cunning are the kings,
But here the true hearts are.

The Christ Child lay on Mary's heart,
His hair was like a fire.
(O weary, weary is the world,
But here the world's desire.)

The Christ Child stood at Mary's knee,
His hair was like a crown,
And all the flowers looked up at Him,
And all the stars looked down.

Cardston Humbles Raymond High

Realizing the ambition of seven years of work, the Temple City High School Basketball team took the Raymond High into camp Friday night in a League opener here to the tune of 39—20, and performed the feat in such a way that it left no questions as to who was the better team of the two. The visitors had it all over Raymond in every department of the game, and deserved their win. Congratulations, Cardston, and come again.

The game was fast and clean throughout, and the fans were given a good exhibition, but Cardston with more experience to their credit, had the edge on the play, and had their play thought out and executed while the local fellows were wondering what to do with the ball.

Jack Kearl of Cardston was high scorer fo the evening with ten points to his credit, and K. Kearl, Wight and Card had 6, 6, and 7 to their credit.

Raymond's team with the exception of Frank Weaver, are all new in League Basketball, and we look for decided improvement as the season advances, and Solon Low, the coach, says he will have a team that will bring the cup back to Raymond if it takes two seasons to do it. It will be some tough job, though, if Cardston can continue like they played Friday night.

The lineup and score was as follows:

CARDSTON— Card, 7; Leishman, 0; Wight, 6; V. Layton, 0; K. Kearl, 6; Spencer, 2; Sloan, 8; J. Kearl, 10; D. Layton, 0; Total 39

RAYMOND— Rutten, 6; Meeks, 0; Fairbanks 0; Weaver, 5; Redd, 2; Ross King, 5; B. King, 2; W. Hawk, 0; Walker, 0. Total 20.

Fred Kirkham as Referree, and Ken Stone as Umpire, kept the game well in hand throughout the evening.

Art Exhibit Is Viewed By Many

The Art Exhibit sent out by the Extension Department of the University of Alberta was here the last half of last week and was viewed by a great many people. It was arranged and ready for inspection by about noon on Thursday, and the attendance Thursday was not so very heavy, but on Friday the attendance was especially good including about 600 school children besides a good many others, and the attendance on Saturday was also good.

Mr. Garner, who is travelling with the exhibit had the opportunity of seven or eight talks on the appreciation of art, and history of some of the pictures and his audiences, especially the school children, were intensely interested in what they heard.

The exhibit contained about 100 pictures, and included everything from reprints of some of the world-famous pictures of the madonnas and portrait work to oil paintings, water colors and even pencil sketches of scenes familiar to Albertans who are acquainted with the geography of our own province. There is no question but what the exhibit left a far greater appreciation of art in the minds of the people, and while there of the people and while there may be a few who can fully appreciate such work at the same time nearly everyone knows a good picture when they see it and all enjoyed spending from half to two hours with the pictures that made up the exhibit that was here. It seems to be a worthy undertaking.

THE CHRISTMAS SEASON

On Sunday next we commemorate the birth of the Lord and Savior of Mankind, Jesus, the Christ. What hallowed memories and sanctified thoughts this occasion brings to mankind, and what a wonderful effect His teachings have had on the morals of mankind. Not a question of law and justice, might and right, love and devotion, but what can be answered from his Holy word, and throughout all the world His name and His memory is revered and memorialized on this Holy Day.

What would we do without Christmas? This may sound like a childish question, and maybe it is, but we are just childish enough to believe that its effect on humanity is so much greater than any of us can really appreciate, that it would be a real calamity if we had to do without it. It marked the greatest event in the history of the world, when the Lord Jesus came into the earth. It was the beginning of hope in the hearts of men, and the proof that the promises of a Ressurection and life eternal could actually be fulfilled. Man prior to the advent of the carpenter's son had died without the assurance of rising again from that heretofore had never been accomplished. Since the dawn of creation, man and women had slumbers and slept and until the Ressurection of Jesus of Nazareth, no graves had been opened, and none had partaken of the Ressurection and the newness of life. With His coming and His death and Ressurection, all this was changed, and today we die, with the hope of a glorious Ressurection, and we know that it is a possibility, because it has already taken place as the scriptures plainly testify. So much for the world-wide effect of the Birth of Jesus.

And what would we put in the year to take the place of Christmas for children? True they fail to appreciate the significance of the Day, and we may be at fault to a certain extent in training them to believe in Santa Claus, and to look forward so eagerly to the presents that are always at the foot of the Christmas tree on Christmas morning, and yet anyone who has seen the childish delight of a Christmas morning would certainly not want to change it all and take this joyous anticipation out of the childs life. Letters to Santa Claus, and good behaviour and all the rest of it and the wonderful expectation is worth it all, and even though the kiddies fail in the lesson that it is more blessed to give than to receive, the parents, in witnessing the satsfaction the children get out of seeing their heartfelt wishes gratified by Jolly Old St. Nicholas, can taste the joy of giving as is seldom appreciated at any other season or occasion.

Let us extend to all a Merry Christmas, and wishes for a joyous and happy day, and while exchange of gifts may be handicapped because of conditions, while we have health, strength, our friends and the opportunity of working and gaining a livlihood and the association of our children and relatives we have the things that money cannot buy, and the gifts for which we should give thanks on this day of days, Christmas. Merry Christmas to you all !

To provide choice cuts for the Christmas menus of the Canadian National Railways Hotels and Dining Cars, 30 of the prize winning steers at the Provincial Winter Fair, Toronto, were bought at the auction sale, which is an annual event on the closing day of hte big live-stock show. All the stock was secured at exceptionally low prices. The feature animal bought was the reserve grand champion of the year, a yearling Aberdeen Angus steer, weighing 1,215 pounds which was bred by R. W. Smith of Brandon Man. All told nine prize winners were purchased for use by Canadian National hotels and 21 for the dining cars. The outstanding purchase for the National dining-cars was that of a car-load lot of Polled Angus steers. These were bred by the Alberta Government at the Agricultural Department's farm at Olds, and numbered 15 yearlings.

Jack Brewester, noted big game hunting outfitter of Jasper, in reporting on his season's activities, states that game this year was very plentiful. In nine days hunting wiith one party the secured two Rocky Mountain goats, two big horn Sheep, two moose and two caribou.

NEW HEALTH RECOMMENDATIONS

The committe of the Alberta legislature nominated to report upon public health services and to consider, have about completed their work. The report to be submitted will contain definite recommendations entirely new in the field of public health. Adoption of these recommendations in their entirety would not be possible at present, it is felt, owing to economic conditions, and the inability of the people to contribute to any co-operative form of health services, but it is believed the committee are prepared to recommend adoption of at least part of the new plans at the earliest moment that economic recovery makes it possible.

When S. S. Prince Rupert of the Canadian National Steamships Pacific Coast fleet arrived in port on November 12, it marked the completion of one thousand voyages between Vancouver and Prince Rupert for this popular passenger liner. Captain Harry Nedden is in charge of the ship at the present time and it is worthy of note that in addition to the regular passenger list on the one thousandth voyage was Mr. S. J. Hungerford, acting president of the Canadian National Railways. Mr. Hungerford was on his first visit to the Pacific Coast since his appointment and was accompanied by Mr. A. E. Warren, vice-president, Western Region, and other officials.

The Crisis of Maladjustment

Normal business conditions exist, speaking simply, when the movement of goods is encouraged by freedom from artificial restriction and by the existence of a relationship between the price-levels of different commodities allowing the farmer, for example, to exchange a reasonable amount of agricultural produce for a fair volume of manufactured goods. Moreover, men and women are apparently never fully satisfied but always demand more goods and better services or at least improvements. Today there is a world-wide demand for clothes and shoes and homes and food. Why cannot that demand be fulfilled? Because there has occurred a dislocation of price relationships.

W. Stanford Evans pointed out some time ago that 1928 may be considered as the normal year for at that time [illegible] the great volume of world trade ever [illegible]. If we concede that [illegible] and the price levels as being in a relationship to one another favorable to that exchange we find that prior to 1929 there was a trend in [illegible] downwards to [illegible] Since then [illegible] has pointed out [illegible] different commodities have spread out of line so that today, for [illegible] we may again speak in [illegible] terms, it requires two bushels of wheat instead of one to buy a side of socks. The conclusions [illegible] drawn from this

Add to this dislocation of price relationships, the economic war of the nations which have used tariffs, quotas and embargoes as their weapons and it is no wonder that trade, the sine qua non of prosperity, has become stifled. Consider also the sad aspects of finance, mismanagement, government overspending and the jumble and selfishness of international politics and it is relatively easy to understand the ways and means by which the world found itself arrived in a crisis of maladjudgement.

It is quite evident that maladjustments still exist nationally and internationally. It should also be clear that we cannot expect recovery unless and until readjustment is courageously pursued. Fortunately we find many evidences of this fact being appreciated and acted upon as in the case of certain capital structures, tarrif revisions, an aparent return to financial sanity, the upward trend of certain raw commodity quotations and the possible steadying of wholesale price levels. Governments too have in some countries instituted drastic economies while in other countries balancing of national and city budgets.

It seems, therefore, that we may repossess ourselves of some confidence in view of the readjustments already begun and immediately to be implemented, for such are the precursors of the beginning of a period of renewed business activity under normal conditions. It should not be believed, however, that all things will be translatetd happily overnight, for the crisis of maladjustment has been so severe that it will be the longer and more difficult to correct.

To conclude we quote from an address of W. L. McGregor who recently made a careful analysis of the business outlook:

"It is apaprent that those in control have clearly recognized the crisis of maladjustment and that in almost each instance to a greater or less degree constructive steps are taken to effect required readjustment. It is in this fact that I see great promise. I do not feel that we should be obullient, however, because we cannot help realizing that these readjustments are bound to take time—some of them may probably take a much longer time than I care to say, government finance for example. The fact that the crisis of maladjustment has gone so very far that readjustment will be difficult, trying and measured is very evident. Accordingly it will require courage, patience and step by step progress. We business men and citizens will require stout hearts, clear minds and steady nerves these coming days.—Comerce of the Nation.

Wm. Clark Dead

Wm. Clark of Stirling, passed away at his home there at 7 a. m. on Tuesday morning, Dec. 20th, death being due to internal hemorrhage. He had attended Priesthood Meeting here on Sunday and appeared to be in good health at that time.

Ever since his serious accident a little more than a year ago, when he was injured in a car collision, he has not been very strong, and has found it necessary to use a cane continually to get around, and this probably contributed to the condition which brought about his death. He is survived by his loving wife and one small child also several brothers and sisters.

William Clark was known to audieinces far and wide because of his plendid voice, and had performed considerably over the radio. He will be greatly missed in musica circles especially in the Stirling ward and the Taylor Stake where his ability and talents were always at the disposal of the presiding officer whether for solo work or in any other way.

Priesthood Meeting Is Held

PRIESTHOOD MEETING

The regular monthly Stake Board and Priesthood Meeting convened on Sunday, with a fair attendance, although smaller than usual due to the change of date, which always causes a slim attendance.

Pres. Allen was the principal speaker referring to the lack of missionaries in the field at the present time. He suggested a co-operative plan in each of the wards, so that an elder from every ward in the Stake could be maintained in the field. I. B. Roberts spoke of how ways had been up for him to keep his son in the Mission Field.

Quarterly Conference was announced for Saturday and Sunday, February 4th and 5th, in Magrath.

Howard Rasmussen Painfully Burned

Howard Rasmussen received painful, though not serious injuries to his hands on Friday last, when a small quantity of gasoline exploded while he was cleaning clothes in the house. He was working in the hall, as far away from the stove as he could get, and the gasoline fumes ignited causing quite an explosion and scattering the fire all over the room and hall.

The side of Howard's face was singed a little bit when the gas exploded, and he received painful burns on his hands and forearms in helping to extinguish the blaze. Luckinly Bill Mitchell, who lives in part of the house, was home, and by his help and one or two neighbors the fire was soon out, but a couple of window panes were blown out, and the door and window casings pretty badly charred before the flames were under control. The local fire brigade was called out, but before it arrived, or had time to get the hose connected the fire was out.

A professor was deep in his work when his wife called out: "Harry baby has swallowed the ink. What shall I do?"

"Write with a pencil," was the dreamy reply.

The aggreived motorist stopped and leaning over the side, said quietly:

THE GAME OF LIFE

We sit in the game which men call life,
And fate is the dealer there;
And oft with a feeling of anger rife
We call the play unfair.
There are times when luck seems only to frown,
Whenever we lead or dare,
And we're ready to throw our cards all down
And finish the game right there.

Yet that is the time we must play the game,
And play it strong and strait.
For the turn will come and what a shame
If we haven't the nerve to wait!
We must play the game with the cards we hold
No matter what fate may deal;
We must play with a smile and a manner bold,
No matter how down we feel.

We must play the game the best we know,
Tho the deal be fair or ill;
We must play though the stakes be high or low,
For the turn must come — and will
For it's anly a test when luck retards
A players winning spell.
The secret of Life's not holding good cards,
But in playing a poor hand well.

The Optimist.
